Department of Comparative Literature is Hub for International Symposium on Romantic Poetry

The Department of Comparative Literature and the Research Institute for Comparative Literature, in collaboration with the International Comparative Literature Association (ICLA), will host the "Third International Symposium on Romanticism: Poetry" on 19 and 20 October. The Symposium is made possible by grants from the University, SSHRCC, and ICLA.

The Symposium on Romantic Poetry will, like the two previous Symposia on Romantic Irony and Romantic Drama, bring together a number of contributors to the ICLA volume on Romantic Poetry to be published in Comparative History of European Literature. It is conceived as a working colloquium in which the contributors present brief 20-minute papers which, after discussion and criticism, are used as the basis of the fuller articles to be contained in the volume. The organization of the volume as a whole is also discussed by those present, in order to bring coherence and unity to the diverse points of view necessarily represented by such an international group of scholars. These colloquia have in the past been among the most constructive kind of meetings held under the auspices of ICLA; and are parallel to the workshops (ateliers) held by the French and Hungarian scholars working on other volumes in Comparative History. They encourage genuine exchange of ideas and information among scholars working on similar problems in different countries and conditions.

The two previous colloquia have formed the basis for their respective volumes, the first of which, edited by Frederick Garber (SUNY, Binghamton) is now complete and in the press of Akadémiai Kiadó (Budapest), the publishers of the Comparative History; the second of which is now in preparation edited by Gerald Gillespie (Stanford), more than half of the final draft of the articles having been received. It is envisaged that the present volume, edited by Elinor Shaffer (East Anglia), will follow a similar timetable: contributors will be asked to supply their articles to the director of the project within a year after the Colloquium; the articles will be read by the director and two referees; and when approved will be prepared for the press. The exact date of publication will depend on the internal timetable of the publishing house, but should take place within two years of delivery of the typescript.

The meetings will also permit consultations among the official participants and other Canadian scholars about individual and collective Canadian collaboration in all volumes of the major series. Canadian scholars are already participating in the preparation of many volumes on particular literary movements—for example, those on the Renaissance literatures—and, therefore, one major intention of the Symposium is to extend this participation to the volumes on Romanticism and simultaneously to intensify Canadian collaboration in other projects. For this reason, a workshop discussion is scheduled about the plans for two additional volumes about Romantic Prose, one on "Fictional Prose" (to be edited by M.V. Dimić and G. Gillespie), the other on "Non-Fictional Prose" (to be edited by M.V. Dimić and F. Garber).

The Symposium is of great significance to ICLA, because the Comparative History undertaken some 15 years ago and of which six huge volumes have appeared so far, is the Association's main research activity. The project is sponsored by UNESCO and supported by a number of major universities and academies of sciences the world over. The Department of Comparative Literature has been associated with the Comparative History since its inception (M.V. Dimić is Secretary of the Committee directing the project) and the new Research Institute for Comparative Literature intends to actively participate in the Romanticism series.

The Symposium is open to scholars, graduate students, and the general public. The registration fee is $35, $20 for University of Alberta staff and $15 for accompanying persons and students. The fee entitles each participant to attend and participate in question and discussion periods after papers are delivered, and to free coffee and lunch on both days of the meetings. There will also be a wine and cheese party to mark the official opening of the Research Institute. A registration and information desk will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. on 18 October and from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on 19 October in 230 Arts Building. All meetings will take place on 19 and 20 October in the Senate Chamber, Arts Building.

The list of invited participants includes the following: Elinor Shaffer (E. Anglia) and José Lambert (Leuven) from Europe; Ernst Behler (Washington), Lilian Furst (Texas), Frederick Garber (SUNY), Gerald Gillespie (Stanford), Cyrus Hamlin (Yale), and Patricia Ward (Pennsylvania) from the United States; George Bisztray (Toronto), Milan V. Dimić (Alberta), Hans Eichner (Toronto), Edward Mozejko (Alberta), Walter Moser (Montréal), Holger Pausch (Alberta), Tilottama Rajan (Queen's), and Roman Struc (Calgary) from Canada.

A detailed program will be published in the next issue of Folio and is available at the Department of Comparative Literature, 214 Arts Building. Posters and leaflets will be distributed as usual. □

Arctic Research Makes Global Headlines

A cause for major international media attention focussing on the University during the past two weeks has been the SSHRCC-sponsored researches of anthropologist Owen Beattie and his team of investigators in the Canadian Arctic. More specifically, pictures of a "well preserved" sailor buried 138 years ago in the permafrost have excited people's curiosity on every continent. To take a page from Dr. Beattie's schedule of interviews: Thursday, 27 September 1984. 1 p.m., Newsweek (New York City); 1:30 p.m., CFRB (Toronto); 2 p.m., Paris Match (New York City); 2 p.m., "As It Happens" (Toronto); 2:30 p.m., Newsday (New York City); 3:15 p.m., People Magazine (Los Angeles); 3:30 p.m., Washington Times; 4 p.m.,

Prime Time Market (Chicago); 4:15 p.m., CKRA-FM (Edmonton). And the list could be continued with such disparate media outlets as Stern magazine in Germany and the Australian Broadcasting Corporation.

"It never occurred to me that this would become such a major story," reflected Dr. Beattie. "When I arrived back from the Arctic at the end of August I produced the slides and took them to a colleague's home one Saturday evening. A number of people were showing slides and mine were among them. The next day I received a call from the Edmonton Sun and, following the appearance of an article in its Monday edition I began getting overseas phone calls at home. Even then, I never thought that my team's research would be of such international interest."

The Office of Community Relations was not called in to help until ABC TV in Los Angeles telephoned on Tuesday morning requesting pictures. This resulted in a call to Beattie who then proceeded to relate the events of the past 24 hours. It behooved Community Relations staff to handle the deluge of media calls and establish a central location where the media could be serviced. This move relieved Anthropology of some of the vicissitudes of dealing with so many eager journalists all at once.

News could be defined as that which alters the status quo. Owen Beattie's research news bent, folded, spindled and mutilated it.

While Community Relations staff are accustomed to dealing with national media, assisting news outlets around the world has been "an incredibly exciting experience" for Sandra Halme, the Office's media relations expert.

Since 25 September, Dr. Beattie has spent more time in Community Relations than anywhere else on campus. "We felt it would be best, as everything was being handled here, for Owen to use our office for interviews," Halme said. "It also meant I would know where he would be at specific times in order that we could discuss his next day's schedule. Dr. Beattie and his family had been inundated with calls at home, not to mention his office, and when the phone rang it would not be answered or simply unplugged. The only way for news hounds to reach Dr. Beattie was through the Office of Community Relations." It became apparent, however, that there were times when he had to be reached, thus "we set up a special signal whereby he knew it would be me and he would answer the phone," said Halme. "As a matter of fact, the only way National Geographic could reach Beattie was by firing off a telegram to him care of this Office."

Calls are still coming in; production companies and the CBC's "Fifth Estate" are now interested in mounting documentaries on Dr. Beattie and his research. One of the more interesting aspects of the story is the number of phone calls received from living descendants and the general public.

"We've had a number of calls from people in places like California, Manchester, Florida and Indiana who are interested in getting more information. A woman in New York called to say she had an original 1854 edition of a book on one of the later expeditions and a man in London claimed to be a descendant of Crozier, the man who replaced Sir John Franklin," pointed out Halme.

Owen Beattie's research serves to indicate that what may seem to be routine to the individual researcher could well become a cause célèbre.

"Community Relations stepped in at the right time," says Dr. Beattie. "I didn't know how to handle all of this and when they took over everything took on a sense of order." In retrospect, he wishes he had been more aware of the Office of Community Relations and its media liaison function. As the now famous anthropologist says, "knowing where to turn at the outset would have saved me a lot of headaches." □

'Rumor' Has it That...

The admissions/registration cycle with respect to Winter Session 1984-85 has almost been completed and the staff of the Office of the Registrar would like to thank all members of the University community who have supported this large endeavor.

In accommodating a record student enrolment, the University considered 19,500 applications. In first term there are 6,000 students who are new to the University.

The full-time enrolment has surpassed the 24,000 mark although first term withdrawals will reduce our official 1 December 1984 count to the 23,000 plus mark. (The Faculties of Arts, Agriculture and Forestry and Physical Education experienced the largest net gains.) Part-time enrolment stabilized at about 3,900.

Approximately 12,000 students completed advance registration by picking up their timetables and another 16,000 in-person registered. Some 67,000 changes of registration (add/drops) and innumerable classroom changes have been executed to date.* □

Guy Fallot to Perform at Kilburn Memorial Concert

The Department of Music is pleased to announce that Guy Fallot will be the featured performer for the fall concert of the Nicholas Arthur Kilburn Memorial Concert Series. The performance of this world renowned cellist will take place on 15 October in Convocation Hall at 8 p.m.

Guy Fallot first studied the cello at the age of nine with Paul Berger at the Conservatory of Music in Lausanne. When he was 14, he obtained the diploma of virtuosity and a year later, with his sister Monique, he received a First Prize in the Sonata competition in Geneva. He then entered the Paris Conservatory to study under Paul Bazelaire, leaving eight months later with another First Prize. To crown all of his achievements, he was awarded the first Piatigorsky Grand Prix at the age of 18. This was the start of a virtuoso's career which soon led him all over the world.

Guy Fallot has devoted these last years principally to teaching in the higher classes of the Lausanne and Geneva Conservatoires. His pupils come from all over the world to perfect their playing under his guidance. A good number of them are already following a career as soloists or have become members of prestigious orchestras.

In 1983, Guy Fallot recommenced his career as a concert artist with recitals in Switzerland, France, Greece, Canada and the United States. He is now making a second tour of these and other countries accompanied by the Swiss pianist Rita Possa.

Rita Possa received her diploma at the Geneva Conservatoire and while broadening her chamber music repertoire in England, she made her London debut. She has appeared as guest artist with many orchestras and in chamber music recitals while touring Switzerland, Venezuela and the United States. The press of these countries has unanimously recognized her remarkable qualities of musicianship and pianism.

Returning to Switzerland, she was asked to teach at the Sion Conservatoire and she is currently coaching string students at the Lausanne and Geneva Conservatoires. She has recently concentrated on the cello-piano repertoire and began touring with Guy Fallot in 1983.

The program includes selections •

from Beethoven, Brahms and Bazelaire as well as the Alberta première performance of Murray Adaskin's "Sonate."

Guy Fallot's concert promises to be one of the musical highlights of the years. Tickets must be picked up in advance at the Department of Music office, 3-82 Fine Arts Building, 432-3263. □

Gairdner Awardee to Visit Campus

Martin Rodbell, a 1984 recipient of a Gairdner Foundation International Award, will visit campus on 22 October as a guest of the Department of Biochemistry. He will present a lecture entitled "The Multiple Roles of GTP-Regulatory Proteins in Membrane Transduction" in 2-27 Medical Sciences Building at 4 p.m. Dr. Rodbell's visit is being sponsored by the Gairdner Foundation of Toronto.

Dr. Rodbell's research is considered a landmark in the area of hormone action. He and A. Gilman, a co-recipient of the Gairdner Award, have been cited for their discovery and elucidation of the manner in which guanyl nucleotides and guanyl binding proteins function as transducing molecules in membranes, mediating the activities of a wide variety of biologically important molecules such as hormones, biogenic amines, neurotransmitters and toxins. Dr. Rodbell has carried out his research at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Maryland, where he is Chief of the Section on Membrane Regulation of the National Institute of Arthritis, Diabetes, Digestive and Kidney Diseases. □

Lord Asa Briggs to Present 1984 Tory Lecture

The Friends of the University of Alberta cordially invites readers to attend the 1984 Henry Marshall Tory Lecture, Monday, 22 October.

Lord Asa Briggs, Provost of Worcester College, Oxford, England, will speak on "The Age of Broadcasting," a topic that the Friends feel will be of interest both historically and as an illustration of the conditions under which the Open University was instituted, and of which Lord Briggs was a founder.

The lecture will start at 8 p.m. in SUB Theatre.

Lord Briggs has been Provost of Worcester College since 1976, prior to which he was the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Sussex. He is a well-known historian, and has been President of the British Social History Society since its foundation. He has also written several books, including four volumes of A History of the BBC, with a fifth on the way. A Social History of England, published by Lord Briggs in 1983, has been widely received on both sides of the Atlantic.

In 1975, Lord Briggs was awarded the Marconi Medal for his active participation in international conferences and communications. He is a frequent broadcaster, and has been Projects Director of the International Institute of Communications since its foundation.

Lord Briggs's visit to the University is sponsored by the Friends of the University. The British Council has assisted with travel expenses. □

CITL Undertakes Series of Workshops

A presentation on and discussion of the construction and processing of both multiple choice and written tests will be offered on 16 October in B-45-H.M. Tory Building, 2 to 4 p.m. The instructor will be V. Nyberg, Department of Educational Psychology.

The session is the first in a series of educational workshops, seminars and panel discussions being offered throughout October by the Committee for the Improvement of Teaching and Learning (CITL).

On 18 October, a panel of peer teaching consultants (R. Carey, R. Mott, R. Rasmussen and L.M. Stanford) will describe the peer consultation process and discuss non-confidential aspects of actual University of Alberta consultation experiences.

The intention is that participants learn how peer consultation may enhance their own efforts toward teaching improvement.

The panel discussion and subsequent question period will take place from 2 to 4 p.m. in 2-33 Humanities Centre.

Details on other CITL workshops and seminars will be published in next week's Folio. □

Welcome Mat Out at Rutherford House

The staff of Rutherford House invite the public to experience A.C. Rutherford's "dream project and finest accomplishment"—the concept and growth of the University of Alberta prior to 1920.

During the weekends of 13 and 14 and 20 and 21 October, there will be "flashback strolls" through the campus at which time the public can learn how the University, despite opposition, grew from a concept to a reality.

Costumed tour guides will point out the first buildings constructed on campus and discuss the growth of the University in the intervening years.

Tours will begin at 1, 2 and 3 p.m. at Rutherford House, 112 Street and Saskatchewan Drive. (Don't forget your camera.) Refreshments will be served on the Rutherford House grounds following the tours. For further information, contact Frank Milligan at 427-2022, ext. 56. □

Scholarships, Fellowships and Awards

Rhodes Scholarships For 1985

Eleven Rhodes Scholarships are now open for Canadian students and will be awarded late in November. Applications must be in by 25 October 1984.

These Scholarships are tenable at the University of Oxford, England, and the value is at least 10,000 pounds per year. They are granted for two years with the possibility of a third year. Scholars may follow courses of study of their own choice. They are required to go to Oxford in October of 1985.

Selection is made on the basis of school and college records without written examination. The qualities which will be considered in making the selection are: literary and scholastic attainment; fondness and success in outdoor sports, qualities of truthfulness, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship; exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in one's contemporaries. Qualities of both character and intellect are the most important requirements for a Rhodes Scholarship and these are what the Selection Committees will seek. Financial need does not receive special consideration.

The 11 Scholarships are allotted as follows: three to the Western Region (Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta), two to each of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Region (New Brunswick and Nova Scotia), and one each to British Columbia and Newfoundland. Conditions of Eligibility: A candidate must: (1) be a Canadian citizen or a person domiciled in Canada, unmarried and have been ordinarily resident in Canada for at least the five years immediately preceding 1 October 1984. A Rhodes Scholarship is forfeited by marriage after election or during a scholar's first year of residence.

(2) have been born between 2 October 1960 and 1 October 1966.

(3) have completed at least three years of university training by 1 October 1985.

Candidates may compete in a province prescribed under either (a) or (b) below:

(a) The province in which they are ordinarily resident. If a candidate is ordinarily resident in the Northwest Territories application may be made in a province under (b) or, if there is no such province, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. If ordinarily resident in Prince Edward Island, application may be made in a province under (b) or, if there is no such province, in Nova Scotia or New Brunswick.

(b) Any province in which they have attended a university, provided that if a candidate is ordinarily resident outside Newfoundland, an application may not be made in that province.

Selection Committees are responsible, subject to ratification by the Rhodes Trustees, for deciding whether candidates comply with the foregoing conditions, and for making the nominations.

Further information and application forms may be obtained from University Registrars; from the office of the General Secretary for the Rhodes Scholarships in Canada, P.O. Box 48, Toronto-Dominion Centre Toronto, Ontario M5K 1E6 (416-362-1812); or from the Provincial Secretaries (in Alberta, Professor D.P. Jones, 459 Law Centre, University of Alberta, 111 Street 89 Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta T6G 2H5).
